Plot The story begins with Chandrakantha (Santhosh Narayanan), a good-natured taxi driver, who lives a humble life with his wife (Manivannan) and two kids. His wife is childless and he gets happy when his wife receives a letter informing her that her first child will be a boy. He does not want to follow the conventional way of welcoming the boy in the house and does not let the child to get up at 7:00 am. At that time his wife gives birth to a baby boy. They bring the boy up in the same manner as their elder son who loves reading, music and fighting. Unfortunately, after the boy grows up, he is imprisoned for an unknown reason and then he is dead. The story of Chandrakantha's life concludes when he himself is dead. Parthiban plays Chandrakantha's elder son, Prathap (who appears as Prabhu) who fights his friend Selvam (Saiju Kurup), and is considered an ideal man by his mother, and often argues with his father over their difference of opinion. Selvam constantly helps Prathap in his fights. On a daily basis, Prathap will have to visit his father's office, where a local politician Madrasa Nambiyar (Kota Srinivasa Rao) employs Prathap as his assistant. His father is the manager of the politician Madrasa Nambiyar's health and building
