It is an attempt to port the ZFS drawing library to C#. You can either use it as a library or use it as a stand-alone graphics application. It provides drawing primitives to be used with the graphics engine, but it is not intended to be used as a graphical user interface. Installation Start Visual Studio and create a new project. On the project type you can select a Windows Application or Windows Forms Application. Open the properties and change the startup project to the new project. Check the checkbox "Application manifest generation", otherwise you will have to modify the generated manifest file manually. The application will contain a default form. Delete it. Add two new files and a class. First add the graphics engine class with the following code: Now add a new class, a simple form and add a button to the form. On click of the button you can create a new window with the following code:package demo.mybatis.zor ba244e880a
