Lol in memory of Gabe Newell and Valve... So I am just getting into this hobby that has enthralled me. Having tried to sell these in the past, I know it is quite a challenge. I have sold maybe 2 and 3 times. But I am still giving it my best shot. I am hoping this group is a place to keep us all on the same page and one stop shop for all of our questions. I will try to be as accurate and organized as possible. So the picture was taken at the end of a two day hike, where we had about a half hour or so of wet weather. The wet weather made it harder to capture good shots of a sunset. I want to get some shots of the sunset when it was more vibrant, as I did have enough time to put this up. The first two pictures were taken at the same place, but with different cameras. I like the two of them together, but the one from the left is more vibrant. The third shot was taken after I got home and downloaded my images to the computer. The first three were taken with the Fuji Sensia S3, the fourth with my Nikon D70s, and the fifth with my iPhone. It was nice to have the iPhone. As you can see, I am still learning about photography. A: I'm definitely wrong, but isn't the addition of "the" to the end of each sentence actually a mistake, though I cannot remember which form it actually should be in. Something along the lines of "Me and my friends were hiking" might be correct, but "Me, my friends, and the hiking" doesn't quite make sense either. That said, I'm absolutely certain that it should be "as well as". As well as a different camera than the iPhone, I'm guessing that it's probably a rule of thumb that if you are using a smartphone, it should be with you, rather than sitting in your car. I found the definition of as well as: 'As well as' (adv.) to a greater degree or extent than (adj.) : as well as having excellent French, he speaks English fluently. I don't see why you wouldn't apply that definition to both questions. Q: The search engine not working while I work on it I am using the react search engine for filtering the
