I would like to know if there is any open source or easy to install web server for embedded devices, such as Arduino board, etc. My project needs a simple web server, to send some files, and receive a photo/video from connected device. I found TinyWeb (developed for the purpose), but it's just too complicated for me, I tried to work on it for a week or two, but failed. Thank you! A: Usually microcontrollers have HTTP server and/or proxy available. I have encountered the devices that have support for HTTP and raw TCP/IP (tcpdump or wireshark will tell you about the internet devices). But generally HTTP support was "added later" - to old microcontrollers and some of them was offered for free by the vendor. So it is not as userfriendly as it could be and even if you manage to get HTTP to work, there is no way to protect your device from other Internet connections and possible
