The objectives of the EU sustainable development agenda are to ensure 'a high level of sustainable development' and 'a sustainable and green economy'. The EU Sustainable development agenda therefore comprises both a set of goals and a set of specific policies and programmes that should be used to achieve the overall objective of sustainable development. The European Council also calls on the EU Member States to address the social dimension of sustainable development. The EU 2020 strategy was established in order to contribute to reaching the objectives of the EU Sustainable development agenda. This strategy constitutes a key milestone in the development of Europe, and will contribute to the creation of the single market, stimulating growth, and creating new jobs. Since the European Council of 2010, an enhanced cooperation process has been launched with the aim of providing European level response to global challenges such as global food security, climate change, sustainable energy and biodiversity. Since the launch of the European Semester for 2014, the European Council has also
