Prophets are the link between the past and the present. The Messenger of God, Muhammad, is the guide to the world. The most important matters are: to understand God and His message and their connection with human beings; to resolve conflicts in accordance to God's order and to obey God. Translation to Urdu "A person who truly understands the Holy Quran, Prophets and Hazarats (companions) will believe in the message of the Qur'an. The Holy Quran is for the Muslims, and the Holy Quran is for the non-Muslims too." does Google Play work in my emulator but not on my device? I wrote an app and it works fine when I run it on my Galaxy S3 running 4.2.2. But when I use the emulator (Galaxy S2 API 13), it crashes. I ran the app under the debugger and I figured out that the line commented out in the code below is causing the crash. I don't understand why this is the case. Can anyone help? A: It's probably not possible to get this to work from within the emulator. If you are running from the Android SDK, there is a market client there (see Tools->Android SDK->Android SDK Tools) that can be used to view app details on your device if you have a Google account connected. You can also download the APK from the device using adb, using the following command: adb install -r MyAppName.apk
