How to fix Seems to happen with certain chipsets on certain PCs. Try different chipsets on different PCs and see if the same problem occurs. Check if the PC has a BIOS update from the manufacturers and update it to the latest version. A: Specific localization of protein kinase C-zeta in rat thymus-derived lymphocytes. The present study describes the distribution of protein kinase C (PKC)-zeta isoform in rat thymus-derived lymphocytes (TDL). Our results demonstrate that PKC-zeta is present in thymocytes and in cultured thymocytes and peripheral T lymphocytes. In all the thymocytes analyzed, the PKC-zeta signal is present in the cytoplasm and in the perinuclear area, where it is associated with the perinuclear membrane, with small vesicles and with mitochondria. In lymphoid cell lines, which were derived from peripheral T cells, PKC-zeta immunoreactivity was present in the cytosol and in the perinuclear region. When TDL cells were induced to proliferate, the signal of PKC-zeta was found in both the cytosol and in the perinuclear region. Immunocytochemical studies demonstrated the presence of PKC-zeta in mononuclear cells which were present in the corticomedullary areas of thymus. These results show that PKC-zeta is present in thymus-derived lymphocytes and lymphoid cell lines, suggesting that this PKC isoform is involved in the signal transduction pathways used by these cells. Japanese dog transports man dying of cancer over 8,000 miles - panarky ===== BinaryIdiot Good to see that the dog isn't just a pet but an actual transportation aid. What does a dog cost in the US? Edit: Oh wait that's another breed but still... It's about 2 grand IIRC. ~~~ guesswhy In this case the dog is not just a pet, but part of a program to help dogs live longer.
