According to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, there’s a 70 percent chance of a tropical storm affecting the U.S. in the next five days. The most likely tropical storm is Katrina, which is now taking aim at the Gulf Coast. With the likelihood of hurricanes and floods increasing, it’s important to take precautions before a storm rolls in. Hurricane season typically lasts from June 1 to Nov. 30, but can last longer if a storm forms off the West Coast or central Pacific. “When someone says they’re prepared for the hurricane, we ask them, ‘Why are you prepared for the hurricane? Are you going to stay in your house and ride out the storm, or are you going to go to the store or are you going to run and be prepared to get things you need,’” says Aaron Dow, owner of Paradigm Home Inspection in San Angelo. Dow says if people do get trapped in a situation, the first thing they need to do is to call 911. “If the water starts to rise, get out of your home and don’t go back in. Get into the lowest areas of your home,” Dow says. “If there is a power outage, you need to go to the lowest area of your home. If you are in the middle of a road, you need to go in a direction that’s away from your house.” If a home is on a hill, Dow says the best thing to do is to get out on the street.14 Things You 2d92ce491b
