Outlook4Gmail is an add-in for Microsoft Outlook that allows you to synchronize all the contacts between your Gmail and Outlook accounts. The application is easy to install and creates a new tab in the Outlook interface from where you can access all its features. Outlook4Gmail can help you synchronize information such as names, company, phone, address, email, notes, contact picture, group and category while providing you with one-way and two-way synchronization. Using Outlook4Gmail, calendars can be synchronized as well. They can be imported from Google into Outlook and the other way around. Moreover, you can also create new calendars which makes it easy to both keep track of all your scheduled events, as well as add new ones and transfer them to the other account. The add-in allows you to insert multiple Gmail accounts and switch between them whenever you need to. Outlook4Gmail can also be set to automatically synchronize your contacts when it starts or on regular intervals while it is running. This scheduling feature acts like an automated backup function that does really come in handy. In case you set Outlook4Gmail to synchronize contacts on its own and are unsure whether it did its job or not, the add-in offers you an event log that displays all its activity. Each entry in the log contains the time and date of the action accompanied by a short description for it. In closing, if you're looking for a simple and reliable way of synchronizing contacts and calendar entries between your Gmail and Outlook accounts, then you can certainly give Outlook4Gmail a try.
