The official website of the Free Software Foundation Europe (FSFE). The "Key figures" page has a list of FSFE members, including the President (the European Union) and the Spokesperson (FSFE's General Secretary). The "News" page is updated regularly. FSFE achievements are listed on the "Achievements" page. The Geeks Archive - The original Atari Geeks Archive. Contains the following topics: * Documentation * Software * Hardware * Related Projects * Contact This list will be enhanced over time with notes, newsletters, additional information, pictures, software, and other interesting artifacts. Some of this information is excerpted or republished from other websites that can no longer be maintained. These pages should be considered, at best, cursory and incomplete. A big number of documents and software from magazines and software developers are also available for download at the Atari (former Atarisoft) Geeks Archive: The Geeks Archive is maintained by Alexander K. . Atari Almanac (once known as the Atari News Forum) is an online community dedicated to the Atari that allows the users to communicate via its own dedicated web forum. This is the place where you can find all the news and information you could possibly want about the Atari World Wide Web. The Atari Almanac has its own staff of editors that search through a vast amount of public and private computer archives to discover the "new" and, on occasion, discover the "old" as well. In the Atari Almanac you will find the most up-to-date information available on game releases, software releases, the latest happenings at Atari's offices, news, rumors, and the latest happenings in the Atari Geeks Archive. In addition to news and information, you will find an active discussion forum, where you can share your experiences, ask questions, find help, and learn more about the Atari. News, rumors, and trade items may be posted in the community bulletin section, as well as the common post news thread. The Atari Almanac is maintained by Maxim S. and Mike B. The "Mini-FAQ" page contains a list of Frequently Asked Questions. It
