Q: How to limit the number of objects that can be saved for a given model in a django view? I have been trying to prevent the user from saving more than say 5 custom objects in a django view. Using this answer, I am successfully able to stop the user from creating more than 5 objects. But the code does not work when the user tries to access the previous page where there are already 5 objects. For example, if the user try to go back to the view that is trying to save the 5 objects, they get a

'ViewDoesNotExist'. I was able to get it working with 'ViewDoesNotExist'. But how can I prevent this when the user is on the previous page. Is there something in django that I am missing? How can I modify the previous answer to work for previous pages. So my idea is to prevent the user from accessing the previous page if there are 5 objects on the previous page. This is the django code
