Get inspiration for your next posts or for your followers. You have the chance to comment in all of your photos, but avoid your old friends from looking at it. Have fun, play, and don't forget to save! Gigya is a social media management tool with integrated Facebook and Twitter automation. These include likes and shares, post updates to your Facebook and Twitter accounts, amongst others. I've been using Gigya for some time now, and have found it to be the best social media management tool out there. Most other social media management tools offer some sort of automation, and Gigya does that AND it works brilliantly. All you need to do is sign up for a Gigya account, and you're good to go. GitHub is a free hosting service for software development. Simply put, it's a version control service for software code. In order to use GitHub, you must have a free account with a valid email address. If you're a web or mobile app developer, you may be interested in GitHub's Desktop client, which is a self-contained Git client for Windows. GitHub also offers a Linux and Mac desktop app that works with Atom text editor. In addition to the self-contained Git client, GitHub also offers a commercial enterprise client. The name SocialCast comes from a marketing campaign that I ran to try and get techies in the Bay Area to use SocialCast Network instead of Twitter. It was a winner from the get go, as SocialCast proved to be more effective at connecting users with one another than Twitter was. Since SocialCast is no longer a company, a new name was needed to keep the service fresh and vibrant. In short, SocialCast for Windows creates a private social network right in your computer. SocialCast is a simple app that shows your friends' Facebook activities on your Facebook account. Though it creates a secondary Facebook account for you, the app will not post anything on your Facebook account (unless you chose to). Besides this, SocialCast for Windows creates a private Social Network for you on your own computer. You

A procession organized by a right-wing group late on Sunday evening in Assam to mark 'Durga Puja' - considered the biggest festival of Hindu religion in the northeastern state - turned violent. A senior police officer said a mob attacked an oncoming procession of Banimara Gohar Das, a member of the Bodoland Peoples Front (BPF). The incident occurred at Rasualpur, around 30 km from Jorhat in southern Assam, where 'Durga Puja' is celebrated in a large scale. Police said the incident occurred around 6 pm. They said some workers of Rasualpur city who had gone to Gohar Das's house for 'puja' stayed back and created ruckus at the house. As the workers started beating up his family members and people from the neighborhood, Gohar Das's supporters came out of the house and attacked the workers, police said. "Some of the BPF supporters chased down Gohar Das's supporters and started attacking them with lathis and other weapons. The supporters of Gohar Das retaliated with bamboo sticks, iron rods, lathis and whatever they had with them. The two sides had a small gunfight," a police officer said. Police said the incident ended after around 20 minutes when Gohar Das's supporters managed to control the situation and stopped the attack. "Police took Gohar Das to the police station to take cognizance of the incident. There was no violence on his way," the officer said. Rasualpur town commissioner Ravishankar Doley demanded an apology from Gohar Das's supporters and action against those who created an incident. Doley said all those who attacked Gohar Das's supporters were booked under sections 147, 148, 149, 341, 353, 504 and 511 of the Indian Penal Code (IPC) for causing tension in public, and have been asked to appear before the court soon. "Gohar Das should have lodged
