the best format to store large amount of latitude and longitude values in PHP I am working on a project in which I have to store GPS location of the user. The user can have multiple location at a time, and he can have unlimited location.

I am thinking of storing the latitude and longitude values in an xml file, or may be may be in a text file as well. Are these formats good enough to store large number of GPS location?

Or is there any other way? A:

For a representation of the GPS coordinates as a text file, I suggest using the GeoJSON format. This is a standard format for representing data that lives in the spatial realm;

---

for which GeoJSON is an obvious choice. Features include: Bounded rectangles:
xmin,xmax,ymin,ymax Polygons: points Point arrays:
points,point_order Line strings: linestring Linearring:
lines,line_order Line/polygon intersection: polyline_rings

---

Geometric figures:
polygon, linestring, geojson
Geo(spatial) data: Point
LineString Polygon MultiPoint
MultiLineString MultiPolygon
GeometryCollection GeoJSON Wikipedia offers an extensive list of the documents that describe this format in detail.
You don't really have to

implement a parser for it though; since you have already decided to use PHP, I suggest you use PHP SimpleXML to parse it. PHP SimpleXML is a simple to use library for reading and writing XML documents. This PHP SimpleXML tutorial, has a section that describes how to parse GeoJSON data, which is probably what you need. As for the actual format, a search for "GeoJSON" should reveal a few other articles discussing this format. A: A straight text file is a great way to store a large amount of data. I'm assuming that you'll be frequently querying and

---
