I downloaded an image from Imgur and it's wrong! This is what I was thinking of as the image should look like: However, when I downloaded the image, it's a different one (see the picture below). I've tried to figure out what's going on but I can't. What's going wrong with the image? A: The image, in fact, looks OK to me. Just crop the auto-extension and you'll get a gray diamond with the site's name centered in the middle (which looks better than a black diamond centered in the middle): If you don't want to crop the white area, you can use a hex editor to find out where the pixels in the white area are located and the type of values (and its color) they have. If you get at least four of the same type of pixel values, you could use the image-recording software Pixelmator to separate the white area from the image. 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a DC-DC converter, and more particularly, to a quasi-resonant step-down DC-DC converter. 2. Description of the Related Art DC-DC converters are widely used in integrated circuits (ICs). DC-DC converters are implemented as step-down or step-up converters. Step-down converters provide a fixed DC voltage output from a higher DC input voltage and the switching frequency is related to the output load. Step-up converters provide a lower DC voltage output from a higher DC input voltage and the switching frequency is related to the input load. FIG. 1 is a circuit diagram illustrating a conventional quasi-resonant step 3e33713323
