Lightroom Adobe's Lightroom is a far superior image-editing program for photographers than Photoshop. You don't need to be an expert to use Lightroom, yet its features are deep enough to satisfy even the most advanced photographers. A co-author of this book, Julieanne Kost, uses Lightroom for almost all of her image-editing work. I do a little editing in Photoshop, but I rely on Lightroom for all the bulk of my work. The following sections tell you what you need to know to use the latest version, Lightroom 4, but for compatibility with earlier versions (1 through 3), check out Adobe's online help pages.

New Teaching Scale for Basic Life Support in Healthcare Institutions in the Republic of Korea. The basic life support (BLS) of healthcare institutions is important for the improvement of early response to patients with cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), the early recognition of life-threatening conditions, and the care of patients with life-threatening conditions. In order to improve the quality of BLS education, the Korean Resuscitation Council (KRC), which is the national body for early response and CPR programs, sought to develop a new teaching scale for BLS in healthcare institutions in the Republic of Korea. The BLS-Teaching Scales for Healthcare Institutions that were developed by the KRC were used to survey BLS education for healthcare professionals in healthcare institutions in the Republic of Korea. Through this, the usage of BLS-Teaching Scales for Healthcare Institutions was evaluated for curriculums and teaching methods, and the results of the survey were used to formulate BLS curriculums for healthcare professionals in healthcare institutions. In order to develop new educational methods, education on high-quality CPR and effective BLS was accomplished, and the education of basic healthcare and critical care was improved by the teaching results. The new BLS curriculums for healthcare institutions were revised and implemented based on the education results. The development and revision of new BLS curriculums for healthcare institutions through evaluation of the BLS-Teaching Scales for Healthcare Institutions are necessary to improve basic healthcare education for healthcare professionals in healthcare institutions. Granulocyte colony-stimulating factor as a single agent for induction of profound remission in patients with acute myelogenous leukemia in remission. We studied a group of 21 patients with AML in first or second remission treated with a single-agent schedule of recombinant human granulocyte colony-stimulating factor (rhG-CSF). rhG-CSF was administered to nine patients with chronic myelogenous leukemia (CML) in chronic phase (CP) (median age: 46 years) and ten patients with AML (median age: 50 years). All patients received subcutaneous doses of rhG-CSF at 3 micrograms/kg/day (6 micrograms/kg/day if $>$ or $=$ 75 years of age). One patient with CML-CP died of infection at day 11 of therapy. Among 19 patients evaluable for response, there was one CR, three PR, one minor CR, and seven no change (NC
