Q: select a random element of a list in R when the list is not sorted I would like to know how can I randomly pick a number from the list in order to simulate the ticket of the name. Therefore, I generate a list and sort it. I'd like to pick one of the name randomly. e.g. a a $a [1] 1 $b [1] 2 $c [1] 3 >str(a) List of 3 $ a: num 1 $ b: num 2 $ c: num 3 >x x [1] "c" "a" "b" >a[x] [1] "c" Any ideas about how to achieve it? Thanks!

A: data.frame[sample(1:nrow(data.frame), 1),] will give you a random sample from all rows. (Assuming you want to take just one row. If you want to sample from n rows, and if the number of rows is large enough, you can set sample size = nrow(mydataframe).) If you want to sample a specific column, you can use sample(mydataframe[,1], 1, replace=T) For R-3.1.1, you can also use

`sample(mydataframe[-1], 1, replace=T) A`
