Pages
Tuesday, 20 December 2014 I love cakes, and this one is no exception. I mean, who doesn't like cake? When I set my mind on something, I always go for it. It's not the easiest thing, especially when you're planning a wedding cake! First of all I had to decide the cake design, then I had to work out the ingredients, how much sugar I'd need, how much flour, which type of eggs etc. Then I'd have to add the whipped cream and add the decorations on top. I decided I wanted a very delicate cake, almost transparent so as it would be more of an ivory colour. I knew I'd need a white cake, however I didn't have any white butter cream in my fridge, so I used my favourite yellow butter cream. After adding it all together, I poured it into my tin and hoped for the best! The cake rose beautifully and it was pretty! Then I had to wait for it to set up, so I sat in front of my laptop whilst it was cooling down. I let my cake cool down completely, then I carefully cut it into slices. The cake was so delicious, it was just like eating cake and a bit of custard, I just couldn't get enough of it! The next thing I did was to decorate the cake with icing sugar, sprinkles, white chocolate curls and lots
