After using Photoshop for so long, it's easy to become complacent with using Photoshop. And let's face it, sometimes, we need Photoshop more than once—like when we launch a new project in the field. If you haven't done any serious image editing in Photoshop in a long time, it may seem like a daunting task to recreate or edit an image that's been edited hundreds of times by other photographers. Here are some helpful ideas and a few tips. 1. Create a new document. It's important to have a new document before you start. Once you open a new document it will replace your current document. 2. Create a new, untitled layer. Select the new document. Press the Layer Menu and select New Layer. Name the layer "Image." 3. Fill the new layer. Click in the new layer document and fill it with black. The area outside the image won't appear in Photoshop because it is transparent. 4. Load a gradient. Click the document once to select it. Click the Horizontal or Vertical dropdown box and select the Layer Style dropdown menu. Click Gradient in the menu and choose Color, Gradient/Luminance, or Gradient/Pattern. You can also choose one of Photoshop's presets. 5. Click the Gradient Tool and drag to fill the entire layer. If you didn't fill the entire layer, the layer's background color will appear white. If you don't see an existing gradient style, you can create a gradient by using the following steps: With the Layer Style droplist menu selected, select Gradient in the dropdown menu. Choose a pre-made gradient style or create your own gradient. Choose a style that's closest to the color you want to use in your image. 6. Create a mask. Click the Layer mask button in the Layers menu (the small arrow near the top-right of the Layers menu) and select New Adjustment Layer. Select the Gradient Tool and drag the gradient to mask over the object you want to hide. 7. Annotate the new mask. Click the Layer mask button again to create a new mask. In the Layers menu, select the visibility of the mask from the menu that says "Layer Masks" (below the little arrow). 8. Select/remove the mask.

Need to know Whooshfile's URL I have more than 20 tabs open at a time and I can't find anything on Google that has all of my needs. They may be buried somewhere in a page deep on a forum or something. I don't know. All I want is to download a.zip of all of my whoosh files for a drag and drop site. I feel like I am running around in circles trying to find it. I have everything else I need on my computer. I don't mind having to add a plug in or two or 3 if it isn't too much hassle. I don't care who makes it or if it is free or not.
