Rate this utility User Reviews Presentation Screen Master A tool that doesn't suck -- by jfokstefan, Nov 18, 2005 Presentation Screen Master, or PSM for short, is an application that I use to show PowerPoint presentations in an easy and convenient way. The program is easy to use, and overall I find it very useful. The presentation function is very powerful, allowing you to select the area of the presentation to be shown, as well as where you want the presentation to begin and end. There is an excellent scripting tool built into this app, which allows you to write pretty much any script you could imagine, including: Mouse clicks. Object clicks. Keyboard clicks. Note, I haven't created any advanced scripts, and there is also an easy to use GUI that lets you create any script you want, but I find the scripting GUI to be much more user friendly. Obviously, any presentation should go out, so

Singapore is being urged to reject an electric scooter that blocks traffic, because as a pedestrian it is unacceptable and hinders our mobility. A retired Singaporean, Mr Ng Han Teng, said he was "appalled" when he saw the two-wheeled vehicle pass him on Feb. 13 near the Bedok Hospital, and wanted to raise the issue with the American owner of the scooter company Lime (LIME.SG). Instead, he was told to contact the company's customer care "24/7" and the local council. Mr Ng, 63, who has been living in the Marina Bay area for 25 years, said the scooter, which he saw approaching when he was crossing Bedok North Avenue 4, should not be allowed to take its maiden voyage in Singapore. He claims to have received a "rude response" from the scooter's owner when he tried to discuss the matter with the company, which is active in six other countries including Indonesia and the Philippines. He said he has also complained to both Lime and the National Traffic Police. "If a police officer stops and makes me hold up a red light, am I supposed to run my red light just to satisfy his whims and fancies?" he asked The Straits Times, writing under a pseudonym. "I do not think that a pedestrian is just a means to an end to the scooter operator. As a pedestrian, I should not have to follow a traffic light that I am not aware of, let alone be detoured around by a private vehicle that I didn't
