Jw.58: The infamous computer game that gives you the same response every time, regardless of your choices.Q: How to stack these two lines of text into one line of text? I am in need of some help with a small project of mine. I have two lines of text that I need to stack onto each other in order to make them one line of text. Here is the code and what I have tried: - (void)setSelected:(BOOL)selected animated:(BOOL)animated { [super setSelected:selected animated:animated]; // Configure the view for the selected state if (selected) { // Make some stuff happen here } else { // Make some other stuff happen here } } I've tried and several other things, but it won't stack. How would I stack these two lines of text? A: You're missing the concatenation operator, the + sign. From the docs: The concatenation operator appends one string to another. [myString stringByAppendingString:anotherString] // "Hello" and " world" To find out more, check out this link. I think most of my roles are probably either killed off (Kerrie's mother) or heavily implied (all the people Jim's family died off in season 2), or I'm cast as annoying side characters, that never grow or change or have any real development other than to not be why they're in the show in the first place. In Season 3, though, I get a couple big one-shots. The first is, of course, Tommy. After the whole Chris storyline with the kid and the virus, it looks like Chris is 3e33713323
