In July 2000, the United States Supreme Court handed down a decision in Microsoft Corp. v. AT&T Corp. that may have profound implications for the practice of intellectual property law. Holding that Microsoft's patent on a GUI (Graphical User Interface) toolbar could not be infringed on the basis of a general standard describing the use of a GUI, the Court cast doubt on the validity of software-based patents in general. The Court's decision, along with pressure from government agencies, prompted Congress to revive the longstanding debate over the effects of intellectual property protection on innovation and competition. . 844, 1650, 3142, 5530?27*y3+4*y2+31*y-154Whatisthev'th term of-28152,-108188,-241118,-426942,-665660?-26447*v2-1715*v+10Whatisthe o'ht
