USO: A Multifunctional Technological Platform for the Fabrication and Processing of Nanofabricated Biomedical Devices. It is desirable to manufacture and fabricate biomedical devices by the modular assembly of multiple reusable components of micro-, nano-, and/or pico-scale dimensions. The modularity and quality control of such precision manufacturing are made possible by microsystem technology (μT). In this study, we developed a USO system that can be used for the fabrication and the processing of nanofabricated biomedical components. The system can function as a μT prototyping tool, a quality control instrument, a manipulator and a labeling module, by combining a polydimethylsiloxane (PDMS)-based droplet generating system, a microfluidic droplet processing system, and an immobilization module. Functionalities of the USO system have been validated via microneedle and cell-laden hydrogel fabrication and cell patterning.Table of Contents Hockey on AEGON Striking while the iron is hot, AEGON takes the opportunity to win the Iron League for the third consecutive year. Q: Custom axis labels in plotly.py I am trying to get plotly.py to generate custom labels for a plot in dot's custom tick label list. The documentation offers this example for an axis : fig.add_traces([{'values': [1, 2, 3, 4], 'text': ['a', 'b', 'c', 'd']}]) But it doesn't mention anything about custom labels. I've tested the following code : fig.add_traces([{'values': [1, 2, 3, 4, 5], 'text': ['a', 'b', 'c', 'd', 'e']}]) I've tried various combinations, but it seems that I always get the values in the default table format for the x-axis. I have also tried to append text, but as I understand, that is not how the axis itself works. I'm using the latest version of plotly.py and it is installed with pip. A: I think you are right, that there is currently no way to use custom labels to set custom tick values. The issue is that from version 0.10.0 you can use the order argument of layout.yaxis to define the positions of the ticks (see import plotly.graph_objects as go import plotly.figure_objects as fo fig = fo.Figure(go.Scatter(x=[1, 2, 3, 4], y=[1, 2, 3, 4])) fig.layout.yaxis.order = [4, 1, 3, 2] fig.update_layout(xaxis_location = 'aboveleft', yaxis_location = 'top') This results in the following figure: 571 S.E.2d 742 (2002) STATE of North Carolina v.
