Now, Is there any software available that would convert everything together to just one single product called AUTRONIC + ENGINE One that would be able to control the engine and the handheld machine. It would be preferred if the handheld is controlled in conjunction with the car. A: After contacting Bosch, I understood that it is possible to do so to have a common interface. What is called "EMEGAS+" which is part of "BARDOLINI" is what we wanted. But it did not support all the functions that we needed. We decided to use a pre-installed EMS by a different company which works in the same way, but it has the following parameters.

param_out_pressure_gs -> Pressure Gauge output ->

param_out_nitrogen_discharge -> Nitrogen Discharge output -> Oxygen Discharge. param_out_fuel_request -> Fuel request output -> Oxygen Discharge.

param_out_engine_counter -> Engine counter output -> Engine Counter. param_out_compression_switch -> Compression switch output -> O2 sensor Input:

param_in_pressure_gs -> Pressure Gauge input -> Pressure Gauge. param_in_nitrogen_charge -> Nitrogen Charge input -> O2 sensor param_in_nitrogen_discharge -> Nitrogen Discharge input -> Oxygen Charge. param_in_fuel_request -> Fuel request input -> Oxygen sensor.

param_in_engine_counter -> Engine counter input -> Engine Counter. You can see that the software is pre-installed in the car by the EMS company, and it can be updated so it can work with the handheld. In my case, the software works with the handheld and the car. To update the software, you will need to physically connect it to the car and update it following these steps. Open the car using the pre-installed software on the car. Connect the machine to the car through the adaptor. Update the software on the handheld (car) and the update (update) it is available at the software of the EMS company.
