Overview The Web is growing and becoming faster every day. One of the main difficulties for Web developers is the high number of different browsers that are available. In order to make website testing easier and more efficient, there are some browser detection tools, among them this FREE tool, WebBrowser60. It's a free tool that compares all the basic aspects of any PC browser. Main features Similar to Internet Explorer versions prior to 4.01, the program is a compact utility that integrates into the Control Panel, allowing it to be opened without giving the user the option to perform a search for the program. After you installed it, you will be asked to select a destination folder, and WebBrowser60 will create a profile in the specified folder. The window will display the following welcome message:

"Hello! This is the program WebBrowser60, it's designed to compare the current browser used by the user with the browsers supported by the application WebBrowser60." After you click OK, the program will start comparing Internet Explorer, Chrome, Firefox, Opera and Safari. It will open a new tab that shows information about the browsers. The window has two tabs: one with the general information about the selected browser and the
