HyperMotion is also the most-used motion capture technology in the industry, as it captures in excess of 500 separate body movements and provides a look into how players really move on the pitch. In partnership with EA SPORTS, Adidas and its subsidiaries Footscan, Inc. and Body Brain Technologies GmbH developed the technology that gives players a more authentic performance on the pitch. The “HyperMotion by Bodyscan” technology has been developed in line with the DIN EN ISO 9241-404:2015 standard and is optimised to track and account for player movements with high-intensity running patterns. On-ball movements are captured and evaluated to measure player footwork, agility and running velocity, allowing for a more accurate representation of a player’s acceleration, speed and changing direction on the pitch. "The introduction of HyperMotion in Fifa 22 Serial Key marks another milestone in our continuing efforts to create the most accurate football simulation on the market," said Frank Möller, executive producer at EA SPORTS. “Through collaboration with the experts in the industry, we have developed a breakthrough technique that captures movement in unprecedented detail.” The GK (Goalkeeper) will use the "GK+" in-game mode to add a physical and visual representation of shots and saves by him or her. Exact positioning and movement of the character will be animated in real-time as the player adds or alters his or her own face mask – allowing for unique challenges by GKs. To address the demand for new ways to play the game in franchise mode, FIFA 22 will include a Franchise Creator for the first time, allowing players to create and play with new teams, competitions and players. Players will be able to share their creations with their friends and the community, with the aim of creating a community-based league, similar to the FIFA Ultimate Team mode. The FIFA Ultimate Team mode will continue to evolve in FIFA 22, with a brand new trading feature – allowing players to trade cards for new players. The trading system also includes a new auction trading tool that will allow players to buy, sell, and trade cards in real-time. This tool also allows players to see how a card is appraised in-game and will be available to reward players for their trades and their Fifa Ultimate Team card collection. FIFA 22 is expected to launch worldwide on Xbox One and Xbox 360 in the U.S. and Canada in late September, and on
