Hajime Masuda, (日本 日本 Masuda Hajime) (July 7, 1889 – July 23, 1986) was a Japanese painter and printmaker. He was a student of Yasuda Hisaya, Toyoharu Utagawa and Oyuichi Tokugawa. Hajime Masuda was a member of the Avant-Garde Secession in the first half of the 20th century and a pioneer of color printing. Early life and education Masuda was born in Kobe in 1889. He grew up in Osaka and studied at the Nippon Bijin-kan in Kyoto, where he was taught by Yasuda Hisaya. Career Masuda showed his painting and calligraphy at the First National Fine Arts Exhibition in Tokyo in 1910. After 1910, Masuda left Kyoto and moved to a village in the mountains. He began painting the landscape of his surroundings. His three major paintings of this period, "Amongst the Hills" (1911), "Wildflowers and Mountains" (1914), and "Takayama" (1916), are considered to be significant paintings of the first color printing in Japan. In 1917, Masuda went to a meeting of the Avant-Garde Art Group in Aichi, an association that included Arishima Takeyoshi, Kamekichi Toyota, Taihei Yoshitoshi, and Oshima Hakase. This may have been one of the reasons why he was invited to participate in the First National Fine Arts Exhibition in 1919. At the Second National Fine Arts Exhibition in 1919, Masuda was one of four artists selected to participate in a traveling exhibition that was intended to promote Japanese culture abroad. Along with Utagawa Oyuichi and Utagawa Toyoharu, Masuda contributed work to the exhibition in the summer of 1920. Masuda exhibited the following works: "The Great Wave of the Sea" (1920), "The Silent Landscape" (1920), "The Dawn" (1920), "In the Faraway Mountains" (1920), "Sandy Beach" (1920), "The Hand of Departure" (1920), "The Wind" (1920), "The Creeping Tide"◆

When I develop and build the application on Windows, it works as expected. However, when I run it on Ubuntu (13.04 and 13.10), these values seem ignored. When the user enters more than one line of text, one line of the text is trimmed, but both other lines of the text are still visible, and I can't explain why. A: I had the same problem when working in Ubuntu with the designer chrome.tabs.update(activeTab.id,{ "url":"" }); chrome.extension.sendMessage({"text":"Yahoo"},function(response) { console.log(response.text); }); }); A: A few things: Remove the line chrome.tabs.update, since you only have one tab Remove the chrome.extension.sendMessage line, since it's only sending a message with no content Remove the last comma in chrome.tabs.update All in all, your code should be something like: chrome.browserAction.onClicked.addListener(function(activeTab){ chrome.tabs.create({ "url":"" }); chrome.extension.sendMessage({ "text":"Yahoo" }); }); We cannot always understand the things we see or believe. The world around us can sometimes leave us confused and with a sense of confusion from not knowing what to do. We can feel that we don't even know what is
