I am new to Android development so bear with me. I know Services and Android Studio to create an IntentService in my application. This is part of a lot of basic knowledge I gained regarding Services and Activities. I am currently to work on a MenuNavigation inside my app. This tutorial shows me how to navigate between Activities. My question: As this is the first time I wrote the IntentService, I'm confused where and how to put the variables which I need to use within the IntentService. This line of code will be used inside the Java file: Intent i = new Intent(context, com.example.xr.sample.MyService.class); A: I suggest you don't use a service - your service should only be doing one thing. If you need to do multiple things then have a second class (Activity or Service) that handles all the different things. I.e. just list all the different things that your service should do. If you need a timed event, as was stated, that is fine in a service. Just handle the timer inside your main activity. A service should
