Work with Smart Objects Smart objects are layers in an image that can be edited with the help of a text box (known as a smart layer in Elements) that surrounds the image. If you make an error, press Esc to return to the image and change the position of the text box. to resize the text box. If you make an error, press to return to the image and change the position of the text box. Left-click to place the smart

You can use the gradient to mask the layer on the image. For example, you can highlight a face in a photograph or use a black-and-white gradient to turn a face color. To work with a gradient, select the gradient and then: Drag a new layer below or above the gradient. This is the layer that will become the mask. Right-click on the layer that will be the mask. Select OK. . To adjust the gradient, press Esc to make a selection from the gradient. You can then place the gradient over the image, or drag the edge of the selection to create a shape. Create a Smart Object from an Image You can convert an image into a smart object using the Effect > Convert to Smart Object command. After the conversion, the layer is a smart object, and you can edit the image as you would any other layer. Smart objects are easier to edit because you can just paint or adjust the smart layer with the tools that are used to edit layers. The goals of this project are to identify, develop and implement methods to provide better access to neurobehavioral and psychomotor tests and measures for veterans with TBI to facilitate the development and delivery of programs that reduce disability and improve quality of life for veterans with TBI. These tests and measures can be applied at the time of injury or later in the recovery period. All research is guided by the following specific aims: 1) To identify and evaluate the reliability, validity and responsiveness of existing tests and measures for TBI and adapt existing tests and measures for use in a web-based system for mobile computing. 2) To identify and develop novel TBI-related computerized tasks that can be completed using touch-based screens and trackball/joy stick interfaces. 3) To identify and develop software support for configuring and scoring tasks that have been developed in aim 2. 4) To identify and develop software support for developing and documenting tasks that have been developed in aim 2. 5) To evaluate whether the tasks developed in aims 2 and 3 can be feasibly integrated into a web-based system designed to provide better access to evaluation and rehabilitation for veterans with TBI. These goals will be achieved through the following steps: 1) A review of existing available tests and measures for TBI will be undertaken. 2) The feasibility of applying existing and developing novel tests and measures to the Veterans Health Administration (VHA) TBI Program will be evaluated. A prototype will be developed for consideration. 3) Feasibility of using our prototype to evaluate individuals with TBI will be evaluated using both a review of existing literature and interviews with clinicians. 4) Feasibility of using our prototype to evaluate individuals with TBI will be evaluated by a review of clinician opinions of the task. This project will be conducted by the Rehabilitation Engineering Research Center for the Developing Brain, which consists of personnel representing the following organizations: 1) the US Department of Veterans Affairs, 2) the US Department of Defense, 3) the National Institutes of Health, 4) the US Department of Education, and 5) five universities in the US. This project addresses a major VA problem, that is, the limited number of available measurements of rehabilitation and treatment outcomes for veterans with TBI. Our work will lead to a better understanding of TBI problems and their solutions. In turn, this will foster better rehabilitation treatment designs for veterans with TBI, as well as better planning of programs for injury prevention, surveillance, and rehabilitation.Marblehead Building The
