How can I display properties of an object in a table that correspond to the keys of that object? I would like to avoid having to assign each property to a variable beforehand. For example, say I have an object called SomeObject which has 4 properties: Name, Age, Money and NumberOfChildren. I want to be able to display their values in a table, as in +-----------+----+----------+ | Name | Age| Money | +-----------+----+----------+ | Person One | 30 | $100 | | Person Two | 45 | $300 | +-----------+----+----------+ I can get the names by doing SomeObject.Name and get the values with SomeObject.Age etc. But I don't want to have to do it like this. I want to be able to display the properties in one row of a table where each property is a column, something like this: +-----------+----+----------+ | Name | Age| Money | +-----------+----+----------+ | Person One | 30 | $100 | | Person Two | 45 | $300 | +-----------+----+----------+ Is this possible? A: You can do this with reflection. The Reflection library lets you dynamically access the properties of an object. You need to create an instance of the object you want to show in the table and create a delegate to the method that returns a property. It's then just a case of
