Christ, Jesus, and Christmas We did the Christmas shopping. We'll go to the Christmas Mass and light some candles and send out Christmas cards. But then it's back to the drudgery of the real world in March. The Catholic Church has included Christmas—and Jesus—in every season, in every mass, in every prayer. But we often overlook that, and it helps to come to the Mass and celebrate Christ and the beginning of Christmas, especially when we are living in March. Over the years, I have heard Christmas defined many different ways. One is, It's when Catholics celebrate Christ's birth and the birth of the world. Another is, It's when we celebrate the birth of Jesus. Another is, It's when we celebrate the birth of the Church. When I was a young man, I found myself in Dallas at the age of 17, sitting in the Temple of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, a chapel of my mother's congregation. (I'll tell you more about that in a later post.) For Christmas, the Temple had a large crib scene, with a nativity scene. One of my friends came up and showed me how it was done. But he said to me, "There's something missing." We looked around, but we didn't find what we were looking for. At that time, I thought it was Jesus himself. I was born in 1947. The bomb was dropped on Hiroshima, and I was born the next day, August 6. I grew up listening to the news as the world sought to rebuild itself after the devastation of the end of World War II. I grew up in the Baby Boom, when the United States had an explosion of new children in its population. I went to college in the late 1960s. I heard of Martin Luther King and other civil rights leaders, and I sang along with the songs of the 1960s: "Turn, Turn, Turn," "I've got a feeling," and "A Love that's True." My early view of Christmas was a very American one—communism is evil; the United States will triumph over the evil of communism, and I will have a better life. I went to the Church at the height of the Vietnam War. I was right in the middle of it

Yesterday, we told you about a new study that has found a gene associated with one of the most common adverse effects of marijuana use. In the study, researchers asked people about the onset of 14 different health problems (including joint pain, acne, headaches and depression) and noted whether these side effects had begun before or after individuals had smoked pot. The results showed that some of the worst marijuana side effects, such as hangovers and depression, began when marijuana use first became prevalent in an individual's life. The researchers found that a variation in an MC5R gene seemed to predict the onset of marijuana use-induced depression. It's currently unknown how long the MC5R gene variant actually impacts cannabis use-induced depression, but long-term marijuana users with the variant (as compared to those who don't have it) reported poorer health than lifetime marijuana users without the gene variant.#!/bin/sh -e # # Copyright (c) 2007-2020, Cameron Desroches # All rights reserved. # Copyright (c) 2008, Henrik Kinnunen (finnish.mail@backplane.no) # # Redistribution and use in source and binary forms, with or without # modification, are permitted provided that the following conditions are met: # # * Redistributions of source code must retain the above copyright notice, # this list of conditions and the following disclaimer. # * Redistributions in binary form must reproduce the above copyright # notice, this list of conditions and the following disclaimer in the # documentation and/or other materials provided with the distribution. # * Neither the name of the copyright holder nor the names of its # contributors may be used to endorse or promote products derived from # this software without specific prior written permission. # # THIS SOFTWARE IS PROVIDED BY THE COPYRIGHT HOLDERS AND CONTRIBUTORS "AS IS" # AND ANY EXPRESS OR IMPLIED WARRANTIES, INCLUDING, BUT NOT LIMITED TO, THE # IMPLIED WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY AND FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE # ARE DISCLAIMED.
