Immunoglobulin production by human B-cell lymphoma cell lines. Human cell lines established from cell suspensions of peripheral blood lymphocytes obtained from five patients with B-cell non-Hodgkin's lymphoma (B-NHL) were studied for their ability to form immunoglobulins (Ig) in vitro. The majority of the established cell lines were found to secrete one or more of the four human Ig classes, and two of these produced all four classes. The Ig class-specific antigens of these cell lines (membrane-bound and secreted Ig) were characterized, and the Ig subclass-specific membrane antigens produced by each line were determined. In addition, the Ig light chains of the IgG, IgM, and IgA classes in five-day cultures of these lymphoma lines were characterized by hydrophobicity and their charge in capillary electrophoresis. The data showed that the Ig produced by human B-NHL cell lines closely resembled normal human Ig.'Black Widow' actress Jean Pascal will take part in a charity fashion show in Cannes next month, organisers confirmed Tuesday.
