Molecular and biochemical characterization of a novel cytochrome P450 gene cloned from mouse brain. We have characterized a new cytochrome P450 (P450) gene, named P450cbb, which appears to encode a novel P450 of mitochondrial origin. A cDNA fragment (1137 bp) containing the entire P450cbb coding region was isolated from mouse brain using RT-PCR amplification and cDNA library screening. P450cbb is a phylogenetically distinct gene that is closely related to the P450c7 gene (Cyp2j5) which is expressed at high levels in brain and the adrenal glands and is also involved in the bioactivation of the cyclooxygenase inhibitor, dexamethasone (Dx). DNA sequence analysis of the P450cbb cDNA revealed strong sequence homologies with CYP2j5 (94% identity). The deduced amino acid sequence of P450cbb shares about 95% identity with CYP2j5 at the amino acid level and contains all of the putative catalytic residues (His450, Tyr472, His119, and Asn209) of the cytochrome P450 superfamily. P450cbb mRNA was present in mouse brain as well as in adrenal glands but not in other mouse tissues. P450cbb transcripts were present in brain at a level 7-fold higher than in adrenal glands. Interestingly, a second full-length P450cbb cDNA (1176 bp) that contained an additional 144 bp at the 5' end and 29 additional bp at the 3' end, was also obtained from mouse brain. Sequence analysis of this full-length cDNA revealed that it contained an upstream promoter which was active in both brain and adrenal glands. The promoter region was identical to that of CYP2j5, except for the presence of a CCAAT motif that is missing from the promoter region of CYP2j5. Thus, P450cbb represents a new member of the P450c superfamily. Een man bij plaats Verloren Hoeve, is met z'n hart op werk gegaan om mannen te vinden die in vrede over de geldschandal zouden praten. Q: How to make a responsive grid with Nested ContentBoxes in WPF? I'm trying to make a responsive layout for my WPF C# application. I am using a Grid with a Width and a Height of 100 in order to have a window that can be resized. However I also need to have ContentBoxes inside the grid that can be configured to have different sizes and then have others inside them which can have different sizes and still be aligned. As you can see, on the first picture, the grid has 3 columns and every Cell in the Grid has a SizeOf=100. I want the cells with the white text in the middle to be at the middle of the screen. The second Picture is in a perfect state of compliance with the layout I want but in this case, the cells are contained in the same Cell. I'm using a Windows 10 PC with 16GB of RAM and a Samsung S7 with a high-end GPU so hopefully this won't cause too many issues. A: You can use 2 things to achieve this Use a Grid and make the cells wide as they need to be. It will look like this. Then make your Contentbox's content Width equal to the Grid Width minus the Space for your outer border. Use this code to set the width in the xaml At the same time, you can use a "ScaleTransform" on your Grid to scale the Layout and make it fit 100x100. To do this you need to set a ScaleX and a ScaleY in your Grid's scaleTransform
