* Photoshop CS 5 is a Windows/Mac image-editing program and is fully compatible with the previous versions as well. This book is targeted to the Mac version. * The earlier version of Photoshop is Photoshop Elements, which is used for image-editing on home computers, from around $60. # ABOUT THIS BOOK Photoshop CS5 is the new kid on the block. While it provides almost every tool and function of Photoshop, the interface is based on the new Adobe Creative Suite user interface, the NSite. The previous versions were based on the aging Adobe Illustrator user interface. Photoshop CS5 is considered to be an upgrade to the software, but it is not a completely new program. It does not replace the old version, as Photoshop CS5 and CS4 will coexist for some time.

A Prospective, Multicenter, Double-Blind, Randomized, Placebo-Controlled Study to Evaluate the Efficacy of Intravenous Tranexamic Acid in the Reduction of Postoperative Bleeding in Patients Undergoing Total Knee Arthroplasty.

Tranexamic acid (TXA) has been identified as a key therapeutic player in the management of postoperative bleeding and transfusion requirements. However, much of the data available regarding the efficacy of TXA in reducing blood loss after joint arthroplasty are derived from studies using oral or injectable formulations that may not be representative of the experience associated with intravenous (IV) administration. The aim of this study was to assess the potential benefits of the IV administration of TXA as a means to reduce blood loss in patients undergoing total knee arthroplasty. This prospective, randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study was conducted at 13 hospitals in China from May 2015 to January 2016. The primary endpoint was reduction in blood loss, and ancillary outcomes included the use of blood products and the incidence of thromboembolic and other adverse events. A total of 283 patients were randomly assigned to the TXA or placebo group (143 patients in each group). No difference in blood loss between the TXA and placebo groups was observed at 4 hours postoperatively (mean difference, 64.71 mL [95% confidence interval {CI}, -16.18 to 146.61 mL]). However, by 48 hours postoperatively, significantly more patients in the TXA group required blood transfusion (odds ratio, 2.30; 95% CI, 1.21-4.37). Similarly, thromboembolic adverse events were more frequent in the TXA group at 48 hours postoperatively (odds ratio, 1.89; 95% CI, 1.00-3.59). This study indicates that IV administration of TXA may not be as effective as other routes of administration for the reduction of blood loss after total knee arthroplasty. However, it may reduce the transfusion requirement in the perioperative period and the incidence of thromboembolic events.
