NETGATE Internet Security is a complete security suite that includes the... Read more Do you have slow internet connection or is it very slow to access your favorite web sites? On the other hand, if you struggle with too many pop-ups that disturb your browsing experience, then you need an anti-popup application. SuperAntiSpyware provides both features and other useful protection from online risks. The first feature you want to try is the Quick Scan. This scan is useful to identify the malware present on your computer as well as the spyware that can affect the performance of your PC. By clicking on the Data tab, you can choose to display the recently used or the scanned files. Thanks to that, you can decide if you want to focus on the activity that took place in a certain time range or the activity that happened on your computer during the specific day. The scan is very fast and only takes a few minutes to be completed. The second feature is the full scan. This scan includes all applications, programs, files and folders, registry, browser and cookies to identify anything that does not belong on your machine. SuperAntiSpyware can find and remove all the malware present on your computer, as well as the ones that can be installed and might cause problems. For example, the application includes a feature that can remove all the spyware from the browser. This feature is called as UFSS Sweeper and it allows the app to detect and remove anything suspicious in the startup and browsing history of your browser. Another feature you should try is the PC Optimization. With this feature, you can optimize your computer resources, speeding up the system and making it more responsive. You can also uninstall the default applications you do not use. For example, you can remove the browser, the search engine or the PDF viewer that you are not using. In terms of privacy, you can use the Expose feature to control what information your computer sends to the internet and what information it receives from it. Besides, you can create a specific profile for each user on your computer. The application also includes the feature to protect your privacy online. With the Private tab, you can configure the options that protect your internet surfing. For example, you can restrict the browsing history by only allowing the apps or sites you trust to access your history.

You can also control the personal information you send or receive while online. SuperAntiSpyware includes an application called Emsisoft Internet Security. This program
