"We are incredibly excited to bring FIFA 22 to life with a new engine, HyperMotion Technology and a new fully-immersive player motion capture system," said Aaron McHardy, Global Brand Director, EA Sports. "This is a major milestone for the future of FIFA." Here's the new details about the FIFA 22 engine and gameplay improvements: Genetic Updates and AI Enhancements The new engine includes updates to AI routines and improvements to Player Intelligence. The new player intelligence in FIFA 22 aims to make player behaviors and interactions more authentic, intuitive and clever. Full details of the updates will be released at a later time. The new FIFA 22 engine is also optimized for full 1080p on every platform, increasing the load of the game on the CPU and GPU. Superstar Soccer Player Motion Capture "In the past, motion capture was used to create fake football players," said Gavin Strong, Producer and Lead Motion Designer. "The new system allows us to capture real-life performance from 22 different players. This was a major driver in our vision for player motion." Players will be accurately tracked on-screen, even when dynamic camera angles are used. Players will be modeled with every body part, including arms, legs, equipment and hairstyles. Developed in collaboration with World-renowned sports equipment and motion capture specialists, Kinect-X, Visual Sciences and Inventys Studios, the new system allows players to run, dribble and shoot as they're playing the real-life game. The new player motion capture system will be used to animate players in all game modes as well as for goalkeepers, enabling for more realistic goalkeeper behavior, player animations and player reactions. Motion Capture Player Animations FIFA 22 includes an entirely new system for goalkeepers with an internal animation system. The new animation system gives goalkeepers in-game behaviors like a kick, run or dive, making the keeper animation system one of the most advanced goalkeeping animation systems available. FIFA 22 improves the player animation systems for players in all game modes. Every player will have more realistic and individually animated movements, while creating more interactions with teammates, opponents and the environment. FIFA Motion Clips This new system enables in-game cutscenes, highlighting the film quality with close-ups, slow motion

Features Key:

- FIFA 22 introduces the Player Impact Engine - a revolutionary, machine learning AI that learns more and more as you play the game and adapts to your playing style. On-pitch play choices become yours to dictate as you control match flow, change your game style and adapt on the fly like never before.

- Reign Supreme: The pinnacle of gameplay, with a new ball physics engine that delivers more ball intelligence, more skilful ball dribbling, and more behaviours and aspects on the ball than ever before. Import your best moves into free kicks, corners, volleys, and more, and the game adapts to your every move. Kick off mode - Football becomes a part of the living world by using new technology to bring players, crowds, and the world around you to life.

FIFA Ball Physics

Now, with FIFA Ball Physics, every touch of the ball feels as amazing as it should. Every hit of the ball is now a fist of soccer physics, every tackle and every deflection stays true to the physics of the real world. A new system helps the ball to react to every real-world defensive block, turf condition and puddle, and this helps to make the ball feel real. Ball physics gives balls more intelligence, and this allows for many new and exciting techniques, like the flickshot, feints, headers and aerial tricks.

Cross it Off

Crossing a ball in FIFA 17 felt elusive and mobile. Crossing in FIFA 22 feels connected. This new connection means crossing is now an integral part of gameplay. You will no longer be able to cross a ball with just one button press - instead, you need a coordinated press of X and Y, and you'll need to open up the run dial to target the run. Run the run, make the run and then time the run to perfect extra time moves. This confidence in your ability to run with the ball is enhanced by the new ball control in FIFA 22. Running with the ball can be made easier by adjusting your runs and crossing vectors, from the actual angles and the angle of your run - without veering into obtuse angles you're making.

- Liga, Continental and Club Cups: With an all-new knockout tournament structure similar to the one in FIFA 17, it's now up to your club to prove why
