Terra Incognita 2007 Copyright 2009 by Oleg Shirokov Terra Incognita 2007 - ScreenshotsThe present invention generally relates to an image forming apparatus, such as a copier, a printer, and a facsimile machine. More particularly, the invention relates to an image forming apparatus that includes a rotatable developing sleeve adapted to rotate along with the rotation of a photoreceptor, and that forms an electrostatic latent image on the outer peripheral surface of the photoreceptor by selectively applying a developer onto the outer peripheral surface of the developing sleeve, while rotating the photoreceptor and the developing sleeve. As an image forming apparatus that forms an image by the use of a two-component developer (hereinafter simply referred to as "developer"), a developing apparatus is known which employs a magnetic developing sleeve, and develops an electrostatic latent image on a photoreceptor by applying a two-component developer containing a toner and a carrier on the outer peripheral surface of the magnetic developing sleeve. In general, for example, as shown in FIG. 6, the developing apparatus includes a developing sleeve 201, which is rotatable
