established that, in the absence of such a judicial finding, the accused has a constitutional right to a hearing on the issue of his sanity before he may be subjected to a criminal trial. *

* * 'Once it is determined that a state has provided an adequate safeguard of the right to trial by an impartial jury, the prisoner should be required to avail himself of that safeguard, unless he can prove not only that the state procedure was inadequate to afford him a fair trial but that his defense would have been thereby prejudiced.' 420 U.S. at 722-723, 95 S.Ct. at 1195, 1201-1202. 18 It must be recognized that some of the considerations discussed in Mapp v. Ohio are not pertinent to the present issue. However, there are many other considerations which are important in this area. 19 Mindful of the standards set forth in the case law, we turn to the question of whether the standards developed by the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court meet constitutional standards in this area. 20 While the trial judge here, who allowed the issue to go to the jury, reached the conclusion that appellant had failed to prove that he was insane, we view his opinion as having been premised on a determination that appellant had not met his burden of proving by a fair preponderance of the evidence that he was insane. (This test was implicit in the trial court's direction to the jury that appellant must prove his insanity beyond a reasonable doubt.') As we have stated, this test is inapplicable when, as here, the defendant had put at issue the issue of his sanity, as the Mapp standards would require. 21 In the context of a habeas proceeding, we are not bound by the findings of the state court. A hearing on a habeas application is a full hearing on the merits of the federal d0c515b9f4
