Players have full control over their on-ball movement, adding to the added realism and improving the experience for players. FIFA will be the first sports game to feature this technology and will be available on PlayStation 4 on September 27. Also newly introduced are “Be a Pro” and “Be a Legend” challenges, Career Cards and “My Player,” which lets you create and control a customizable player avatar. Ahead of the game’s release on Sept. 27, we sat down with Ian Darke, who previously served as lead game designer for Madden and lead designer for FIFA, to talk about the innovations being introduced in Fifa 22 Cracked Accounts. Nintendo Newsletter: Can you elaborate on the new innovations EA Sports has introduced in FIFA 22 and the challenges and opportunities the game will bring to the table? Ian Darke: They’ve introduced “HyperMotion Technology” which powers the entire on-ball movement. One of the things they’ve worked on is making sure that players are more involved and can more easily steer their character. You’ll have full control over your on-ball movement, and you can go through your attacker or pass the ball through the defense as you prefer. You can even anticipate and take a shot on goal. The player is the ultimate controller and the controller always has to be with you, especially in a football match. That’s what EA has been trying to make sure that the gameplay system works as smoothly as possible. It’s also brought us the “Be a Pro” challenge and the “Be a Legend” challenge. We have the “My Player” for the first time too, which lets you customize your player’s attributes, skills, body types, shoes and colors. Nintendo Newsletter: What were your duties on “My Player”? Ian Darke: My role is to be the creative face of the game, so I’ve been working with the great team at EA over the last few months to brainstorm how this feature could work best. One of the big things we had to consider was to balance the creativity. We don’t want to make a bunch of items, then force people to pick their favorite. We have a simple tree system to start with, and once you have your customization, there are so many exciting things you

We've created a series of spotlight gameplay videos highlighting the most significant feature updates, and over the coming weeks we'll be releasing in-depth previews of each of them. Completely redesigned Player Impact Engine The core of the Player Impact Engine (PIE) is now completely overhauled with new logic and animations to bring even more realistic skill. The engine can now also generate variation and unpredictability, meaning that players have a much more realistic distribution of impact behaviour. The result is players whose actions, reactions and skills are more suited to the surface they are playing on. New Player Behaviour System This makes for a more natural approach to players' behaviour and movements, with tighter ball control and players having more support when they win possession. Optimised dribbling control Key to the new game is our improved dribbling system. Whether your player is racing towards the goal or bringing the ball out of defence, you'll have more control over how the ball moves in every situation. For the first time in EA SPORTS FIFA, players will also be able to carry the ball in their hands. FIFA is a series of football video games created by EA Canada and published by Electronic Arts. The first FIFA game was released in August 1994 for the Sony PlayStation. The most recent game was released in September 2015 for the Xbox One, PS4 and PC. How is it different? Since FIFA 12, EA has focused more on gameplay and has taken away some of the game's off-the-cuff features. Though the overall structure remains the same, the game's core gameplay engine has changed. The passing and shooting accuracy, pass completion, shooting and shooting accuracy, and foul picking are all improved. There are more on-ball movements and off-ball movements now. It feels more organic now. The dribbling is more natural, and it feels smoother. Players have more control, which is good. There's also new Commentary Engine. Old school commentary can also be heard. Commentary audio can be customized and re-recorded. Commentary can be recorded in up to five different languages. FIFA 22 comes with six play modes: Live Online, Live Season, Quick Match, Online World Cup, Online Cups, and Franchise. There are more than 100 clubs to choose from. Play the game in any language via the new Commentary Engine. There are over 150 national teams to choose from. There are also new tweaks like the new Player Movements when the ball is being passed. They can be dynamic. They can move with or against the player, which is something fans would have wanted. You can also use controls to position the players, similar to a real game. Another new feature is the Touch Pros. These are small white gloves that you can place on your controller so you can interact with the ball just like with a real pitch. Also, you can choose to move these gloves across your controller to perform with them. The new Player Crouch Is easier to use. Also, to cut inside, you can make a player pre-crouch. There is also an auto play function, so you can auto-play once you crouch as well. It's also a new play type. There are now markers on players to display how long they are in the air. The new Pinball kick is easy to control. The new Capture the Flag is easier and more tactical. The new Bully Pass can be used to get free kicks. The new Pump fake is more realistic.
