To get started, you'll need a copy of Photoshop Elements, an SD card, a monitor, and a keyboard. 1. Download Photoshop Elements Sites like Makeuseof, Softpedia, and DownloadHaven all offer Photoshop Elements for free. You should only download the version for your operating system - so don't try to download the Photoshop Elements for Mac if you have a PC. When you are done installing it, your computer should have a new icon on your desktop. Click on that and choose the file labeled "Elements". 2. Create a New Image This is the first thing you'll need to do with Photoshop Elements. Click on the icon that reads "File" and select New. Click on the "Color" icon, then select "Image." Choose a photo that's saved on your computer. You can use any photo that is in your computer. By default the photo is automatically placed in the middle of the image. But it isn't necessarily the best place to start. If you're a more experienced Photoshop user, you'll want to scale down the photo. When you're done, give the image a name. Name it something like, "Horse_Skyline1," and save it. The "File" icon should be replaced with the new one we made. Your new image should be open. 3. Edit the Image Your first step will be to take a look at the file. Select the image in the image window on the right. The top left corner is where you'll find the main "commands." One of the commands at the top right corner is the one you'll use the most. With the thumb-stick, you can move the image around. Next to that, under the left button, you can select the type of edge you'd like. There are four different types of edges: hard, soft, feather and vignette. In the menu on the bottom left, the four main commands are: Select, A, Edit, Window. In each of these commands, there is a list of items. We'll focus on the "Edit" command. By clicking on the main button you can adjust the many features in the image. The upper left menu has most of the important adjustments. 05a79cecff

* * Brush Tip Shape * Brush Size * Brush Opacity * Brush Mix Brush Controls The Brush tool has two main controls: size and opacity. If you're painting a lot of images or applying an effect to them, you can save a lot of time by clicking the Brush Size tool's shortcut key, shown below: 1. 1. Press the B key to make the Brush Size dialog box appear. 2. 2. Select Brush Size and press Enter to enter the value in the Brush Size dialog box. If you want to enter a pixel value, type the value in the box. 3. 3. Click OK to exit the Brush Size dialog box. The brush size is the unit of measure for the size of the brush. The Brush Size dialog box shows different brush sizes, as shown in Figure 4-2. It also shows the percentage of brush opacity. The brush opacity is specified as an integer value between 0 and 255. Zero is completely transparent and 255 is completely opaque. The number of brush sizes is relative to your view size, so the actual values in the Brush Size dialog box will differ when you view an image in different sizes. Photoshop starts with a few small brush sizes, and those small brushes are larger as you zoom in to a smaller view. For example, if you start with a size value of 150, the brush size will be 150 as you look at the larger portion of the image. If you zoom in to an even smaller view, the brush size will increase. For example, the brush size will increase to 200 when you view an image at 100 percent size. Figure 4-2 The Brush Size dialog box As a general rule, you'll never want to go below a size value of 50 in any image. Anything smaller than that simply won't produce a noticeable result on your image. Anything larger than that will make the image too soft and lose image detail. You can view the Brush Size dialog box again to see the values for the current zoom level. Selecting a Brush Tip Shape Photoshop provides a range of brush tip shapes. These shapes, shown in Figure 4-3, are great for applying effects such as stippling or "softening." Figure 4-3 The six brush tip shapes These six shapes are especially suitable for effects such as stippling, adding a soft, almost translucent glow, or

Q: Using a shader modifier with a new pipeline I've created a shader modifier for my new pipeline (like "nodes on links", which produces geometry with no internal faces). It works great as long as I only use one node on the modifier and one of the nodes on the modifier is deleted or disabled. However, when both nodes are disabled, the modifier no longer works. Any suggestions on why this might be happening? A: I do not know how your modifier works, but you might have to link your modifier to all faces that it uses, including edges. Depending on the type of your modifier (vertex level, edge level, face level), you may need to enable all faces (only edges or only vertices) or just disable any face that it should not affect. /* * Copyright (C) 2005 Frerich Raabe * * Redistribution and use in source and binary forms, with or without * modification, are permitted provided that the following conditions * are met: * * 1.
