Running animation has also been rebuilt and tweaked, to offer faster, smoother movement, as players can now accelerate at maximum speed for no more than 30 frames. For goalkeepers, once they raise their arms, their movement is aligned to their body – offering the reaction time of a gamer or player. The player's movement isn't fluid, however, with rigid sprints and fixed running animation restricting players' movement. FIFA 22 will also introduce Skill Ratings, allowing players to test and improve their skills and abilities by completing challenges on the new “Benchmark” mode. The mode offers unique challenges designed to improve players’ individual game and improve their unique combinations and skill sets. Challenges are unlocked as players complete challenges on the main career mode, which help further develop and improve players. For the first time in FIFA’s history, players will be able to compete on two new mythical teams. Proving that controversy never goes away, FIFA 22 will also introduce “evil” cosmetic kits to the game in the form of a team inspired by the Malaysian Football Association. FIFA 22 will also see a variety of player features for all teams included in the UEFA Nations League, which can be used online. The World Cup featured over 18 million players competing in the World Cup Final, with FIFA esports competitions seeing nearly 30 million online viewers. FIFA includes a complete licensed transfer market offering more than 1,000 new player personalities, including players from the Gulf region, with new kits, shorts, boots and training gear available. We’re looking forward to the next FIFA. Stay tuned for

(EA) acquired FIFA in May 2006. It was released on September 27th, 2018 for PlayStation 4, Xbox One, PC, Nintendo Switch and Google Stadia. FIFA 22 introduces a number of gameplay changes, including a re-designed user interface, expanded Tackling, better gameplay balance, new captaincy tools, and more. EA also started a 'Generation Next' content roadmap with a total of 36 planned updates for FIFA, each adding new players, tactics, features and content updates. Launching next on 19th December 2018 FIFA 22 is launching on 18th December 2018. Build a Team You've named your team and everything else in FIFA 22 is coming together – but when it's time to take on your opponents, you'll want to dominate the pitch. FIFA gives you the chance to put all your creativity and team building into creating a modern and balanced squad. It's the perfect opportunity to let your fantasy run wild. You can also use the next-generation Player Impact Engine to build the ultimate team using all the skills and attributes available, whether you're looking for some new additions to complement your current squad or just want to try something different. The ideal mix of experience and youth, speed and power, touch and technique: all of that is at your disposal to build a team that can take on the competition. Unlock your Stars FIFA 22 offers players a new way to unlock their stars. Players now have the ability to unlock special rewards and items by fulfilling all of their hidden goals, which can be achieved across all modes of the game. The only other alternative is to play matches, and earn in-game currency. The new hidden star system rewards players with cosmetic items like equipment upgrades, more skills, and decorations. Some players are more likely to receive rewards for completing hidden goals than others, based on the amount of experience and skill they have developed across their career. Something for everyone The new User Interface (UI) redesign on PS4, Xbox One and Nintendo Switch makes navigating the game easier than ever.
