Indian dentistry began in 1582 when some foreign workers established a surgery in Kolkata. The beginnings of modern dentistry can be traced to the 19th century, when Bombay and other southern cities had flourishing dental schools. As India experienced industrialization, there was an increase in the demand for dental services. In the late 19th century, dental care was provided by missionaries and professional dentists, who set up clinics, schools and hospitals. The first state-sponsored dental institutions were established in 1938, and by the end of the century there were 12. Dental research began in 1940. Today there are approximately 30 dental schools. There is a shortage of dentists, and only about 4,000 practising dentists per million population.Yardley Inc. Yardley, Inc. is a manufacturer of digital storage and backup systems for computers.
