Clinicopathological features and long-term outcome of invasive lobular carcinoma diagnosed as pure solid lesion: a single-center cohort study. The aim of this study was to analyze the clinicopathological features and long-term outcome of pure solid subtype of invasive lobular carcinoma (ILC) compared with mixed ILC. A single-center cohort study. A university-affiliated tertiary referral center. Patients with ILC diagnosed as pure solid (ie, composed of more than 50% solid component) were identified. Clinicopathological data and long-term outcome were compared with the mixed ILC. A total of 36 (22.2%) cases had pure solid histology. The presence of single nodule on physical examination was the most common (73.3%) presentation. The mean tumor size was 22 mm (range, 10-70 mm), and 17 (47.2%) tumors were greater than 20 mm. According to 2002 ILC-WHO classification, 89.4% of pure solid ILCs were grade 1 (67.6%) and were estrogen and progesterone receptor negative. When compared with mixed ILC, pure solid ILC had significantly higher rate of nuclear grade 3 ($P = .005$), hormone receptor negative tumors (P

I have a knockoutJS model that contains an array. When the length of that array changes (say, some user clicks a button and deletes some items) I want to clear the model array and then re-populate it with the deleted items. I am wondering if I need to also call ko.applyBindings() so that the model array can be refreshed? Does this happen by itself (i.e. the model array isn't hard-coded or is it related to updating the model), and if so, how do I know when it does? A: To bind to a computed observable in KnockoutJS, you need to call ko.applyBindings(). The Beginning: 2013 Okay. So, over the summer I have been doing a big Scraps of Comfort project and have been using some of my Scraps of Comfort kits to complete it. This is just a really quick post of pictures and what I am using from the kit, so I will post a fuller picture of the whole final quilt tomorrow. So. The first few pics show the chipboard bases I made, showing how I am using the Scraps of Comfort kit and a white smaller quilt I made in 2013.
