quality, but most of them are meh/so so. That said, Tim and Eric Awesome Show is easily one of my top 3 favorite shows on network television. So I was pleased to see that it was added to their channel lineup. Since it's in HD I figured I'd record it so I could watch it on my big screen TV, but since I had it recorded the day of I wasn't all that disappointed. This Tim and Eric Awesome Show has been on the air for a long time. There are 2 previous seasons on DVD, which include some comedy shorts and a mockumentary. I'd heard that they only do really short run of episodes, but my hunch was correct, since after a bit the show seems to go into semi-retirement until it disappears from the airwaves.

The last episode was recorded right before Christmas 2006 and it didn't return until the fall of 2008. After each episode the host asks a random person on the street an awkward question, then the person responds with an equally awkward response. It gets pretty bizarre at times, with the most interesting responses coming from the actual total strangers. I found myself laughing a lot throughout this one, and at the end as Tim returned to his "character" and was away from the camera again I was left with a huge amount of screensaver lets you take control of the time travelling DeLorean yourself! When the car is driving around, you can press Space and the Game Mode will be started. In the Game Mode, you only need to press Space bar to switch between normal and hover modes. While in the normal mode, you can: Up Arrow: Accelerate Down Arrow: Brake Left/Right Arrows: Turn In the hover mode, you can: Up Arrow: Accelerate Down Arrow: Brake Left/Right Arrows: Turn C: Switch camera modes You can turn the car around by driving forward, press and hold the Arrow Keys and turn the car slowly. lie. The dimensions of the DeLorean haven't really changed much since the film, there's been a few 3D printed ones but I didn't want to use any of those. I just wanted the real thing. When the time traveling DeLorean is running down the road, it will go through time! When it gets to a space it will go into time skipping or hover mode. The hover mode has different controls than the normal mode. Press and hold Left or Right to toggle between them. Also, the car will go a higher and faster speed when it's in hover mode.

INFRASTRUCTURE This car is basically just a model of the DeLorean, with the added pieces. -

For some reason I wanted a 1:10 scale model, so I created this. The main problem with a 1:10 scale model is that the wheels don't move. I had to put wheels on the bottom of the model. - Power Box: I wanted the Power Box to be something that looked like it could work, so I made this. I've seen other models, and I liked the way the original looks. But if I'm going to make a model of a power train, I'll probably want to model the whole thing. The problem with a model of the whole thing is that it takes up a lot of space. - Computer: This is basically just an SC-10 computer monitor, but I made it cool so it doesn't look like an ordinary computer. - Lights: I put headlights on top, because

The back to the future in a 3D world. You're driving the DeLorean around a mall and getting bored just looking at it. So you reach into your time machine and press the space bar. In 3D you're driving around the mall and the car goes insane! It's like a game! In Game Mode the car runs through time. You can speed up and slow down, turn left and turn right. The trick is just to keep driving forever, and as long as you drive faster than 88mph you'll end up moving through time. You can also push the car off the park and back into the future, or the car can even be pushed off the edge of the
