Football. The world's game. Five-time World Champions, UEFA Champions League and UEFA Cup winners -

there is no bigger club in the world than the mighty UEFA Champions League winner Bayern Munich. The famous green-and-gold symbol, the Allianz Arena in Munich: FIFA's current home – the club has never won the FIFA Club World Cup (2001, 2009, 2010) but made it to the finals in 2012 before falling to another German club, FC Barcelona. Where's the manager, EA Sports? FIFA's 11-time Manager of the Year, the 2010 World Coach of the Year, the UEFA Coach of the Year in 2012, Jupp Heynckes, has returned to manage the Bavarians in FIFA 22. In previous games, he's been employed by EA to make in-game managerial decisions in matches. From the new game, he will be working behind the scenes in all the usual systems, from team building to squad rotation. It's been a tough year for Heynckes, so how does the manager's mood compare to the team's season? "It's not easy," Heynckes says. "The season was going well until last game. We were close to the UEFA Champions League quarter-finals, but one match against Anderlecht derailed us. It was the first time in 19 years that we were not in a UEFA Champions League group. I hope that the new club will deliver the results now." Heynckes and his players have new identities. New transfers, new shorts, new boots, new kits and new looks! The Bayern Munich squad is a new one, with a new team identity. The players are centred around their historical club, with transfers focused on representing the club with flair and a real sense of passion. The player models have been completely revamped and are more organic-looking, responding to how players move. The visual improvements will make the club look like a new team in the eyes of a new generation of FIFA players. Team chemistry, player morale and squad dynamics have been enhanced further: the new chemistry engine takes into account the state of the team and player morale, with the player morale affecting the overall chemistry rating of the team and each individual player's morale and chemistry rating relating directly to the player's overall morale, which impacts their ability and desire bc9d6d6daa

FIFA is the world's #1 football simulation franchise and the #1 sports franchise of all time in terms of sports video game units sold, having shipped over 140 million units and selling over 100 million games worldwide. The FIFA franchise, also available in a version for PlayStation®4, Xbox One, Windows® PC and Nintendo Switch, launched in September 1991 with the original FIFA, which became an instant global phenomenon and launched the most successful sports video game franchise of all time. It then spawned five titles, FIFA World Cup Soccer, FIFA 99, FIFA 2000, FIFA 2001, and more recently this year's FIFA 20. In FIFA, players use the best tools in the game and a combination of training tactics, strategy and skill to take down other teams and improve their soccer skills. Players take on the role of a team captain, coach and team manager as they attempt to guide their team to victory in a tournament hosted by EA SPORTS. What is EA SPORTS FIFA? EA SPORTS FIFA 22 enables players to experience the excitement of the world's greatest sport the way FIFA puts players in the centre of the pitch and delivers the most realistic football experience in a video game. The debut of EA SPORTS FIFA 22 introduces five new ball behaviours, new momentum-based dribble moves, a new sprint button, rich animation, Player Intelligence, improved ball control, ball flight and so much more. With innovations that completely changed the game, you'll find the most comprehensive and accessible collection of player and player agent characteristics to date. EA SPORTS FIFA 22 provides a more immersive environment, and provides a more complete, complete, accurate and comprehensive simulation of the game of football. The EA SPORTS FIFA World Class Team EA SPORTS FIFA 22 introduces three new World Class Teams. As well as re-imagining classic teams, such as the USA, Germany and Brazil, EA SPORTS FIFA 22 also introduces three new World Class Teams. Each team, which plays in their own unique way, is designed to use the complete array of skills available to each player. What is a World Class Team? FIFA World Class Team: Every player in the game now plays like a World Class Player. This in-depth characteristic re-engineering of player movement brings about the most authentic and complete simulation of player actions on the pitch, from technical moves to improvisations, confidence to counterattacks, positional awareness to attacking plays and much more.
