There are many helpful tutorials available for beginners. Some are free, others are paid, but many are available for free. Free tutorials can be found here: Free Tutorials | Tutorials for Beginners | How to Tutorials Photoshop is often compared to Corel Photo-Paint, but it is not a simple renaming of the former application and is actually a wholly different program. This article will explain all the essential features of Photoshop so that you can understand how to use it. Skill Level Photoshop can be used for beginners as well as experts, so no matter what experience level you are it will be easy to learn. If you have ever used other photo-editing programs then the jump to Photoshop will be seamless. Application Size Photoshop has a size that is similar to Microsoft Office: 7.8 GB. This size makes it suitable for a variety of computers. System Requirements Photoshop is a complex application, and has a few important system requirements: • Microsoft Windows OS (Windows XP, Windows Vista, Windows 7) • A broadband internet connection • 16GB of free hard disk space (or more) • 1 GB of RAM minimum Screen Resolution Photoshop supports almost any screen resolution. However, to get a quick view of your images while editing you should use a screen resolution of 2,048 by 1,536 pixels, or roughly a 4:3 screen format (1,280 by 1,024 pixels). A 32-inch display will cover 72% of the screen, and a larger monitor will cover a smaller percentage of the screen, making it difficult to see the whole image at once. In the early days of Photoshop the basic screen resolution was 1024 by 768 pixels. Today, however, 32-inch monitors can be found that have a screen resolution of 21 inches by 15 inches, also called a 16:9 or widescreen format. This format gives an aspect ratio of 16:9 or 1.778:1 and will cover a much larger portion of the screen. Most LCD monitors these days have resolutions of 1,920 by 1,080 pixels, also called a 1080p format, giving a 2.937 by 1.800 aspect ratio. Adobe recommends that Photoshop be used with a window width of 1,920 pixels and a window height of 1,080

I have function to split string: test d1 d1 [[1]] [1] "abcdef" [[2]] [1] "abbbcde" If you really have to have everything in a list, but don't care how many splits you get, then you could use something like this: > strsplit(paste(test), ",", fixed = TRUE) [[1]] [1] "abcdef" [[2]] [1] "abbbcde" [[3]] [1] "def" "cde" [[4]] [1] "bc" "ac" [5] "f" "e" "a" "c" "bc" "ac" Studying Vascular Aging in the Post-MI LV Remodeling Using Multimodality 3-D Cardiac MRI. Cardiovascular disease (CVD) is the leading cause of death worldwide, and major CVD events including myocardial infarction (MI) are leading causes of mortality and morbidity. Subsequently, a large population of patients with recovered LV systolic function suffers from poor quality of life, and the 5-year mortality risk remains high, even after an accepted successful rehabilitation. Despite the fact that more than 20% of MI patients die within 5 years, the pathophysiological mechanisms leading to this high mortality rate are not completely understood. Despite several advances in cardiac imaging, understanding of the chronological relationship between LV remodeling and clinical outcome is still incomplete. Cardiovascular magnetic resonance imaging (CMR) has opened the door to a better understanding of the dynamic process of myocardial damage. Early evidence has shown that multimodality CMR can be used to monitor the
