Sudden death: a forensic and medical approach. A comprehensive approach to the forensic and medical aspects of sudden death is presented. Investigation of the scene, scene examination and coronial examination are detailed. Medical causes, including neoplastic and anoxic causes of death, present in the autopsic series of patients are described. The medical emphasis on cardiovascular disease and pulmonary disease is illustrated by case vignettes. Intoxication at the time of death is rarely a cause of sudden death. According to one of the inventors of the present invention, a technique of manufacturing a thin-film transistor (TFT) by a photolithography method has been disclosed in Patent Document 1. Specifically, a technique has been disclosed which uses a photolithography technique on an oxide film to form source/drain electrodes made of Mo—Nb alloy. In this technique, as an etching stopper layer between a base substrate and an oxide layer, an Al₂O₃ film is used. However, according to the technique disclosed in Patent Document 1, source/drain electrodes have a heterogeneous structure (Mo—Nb alloy) including a part having a high nitrogen amount of 20% or higher. Accordingly, in a TFT (a thin-film semiconductor thin film transistor), it is difficult to secure a long-term reliability such as LDD (Lightly Doped Drain) characteristic. Patent Document 1: Japanese Published Patent Application No. H6-181660. An invasion of Poland ... the "pogrom of the villages". The image of the "Polish Death March" came to mind after a BBC radio piece was broadcast last week in which a Polish historian spoke about the "Hate-filled German attitudes" shown towards Poles, especially after the Katyn Massacre in April 1940. According to
