Q: Convert a line of python code to a collection of coordinates I am trying to understand the conversion of a line of code into a collection of coordinates (X,Y). I got this line of code: points = [(min(x-float(x)), min(y-float(y))), (max(x-float(x)), max(y-float(y)))] I have my defined range: data_min = [[x0,y0] [x1,y1]...] data_max = [[x0,y0] [x1,y1]...] And I have the line of code above to extract my points as x,y coordinates.
