We may have finally solved this entire mystery behind why the Internet is so shit. You may have heard that some of the Internet's bright lights are on borrowed time. They're not, though. Someone somewhere has figured out a way to make people care about new things, and that means we have our quality of life back. The key here is that people buy good things, and they've been focusing on good things. The things that make good things good are things like television shows and movies and well-made games, and this was actually a bit of a problem. As you'd expect, television's quality has been in a bit of a rut. It was all starting to feel like the same shows and movies again and again.

Advertisement But then Netflix started doing things like making full episodes of House of Cards, and, for the first time, the best shows from other countries felt new. People were really excited about the completely new and improved Star Wars: The Last Jedi, even though it had been in theaters for over a year, and people saw it and were really happy. It was game over for some of those remakes people had been talking about for years. They weren't going to happen anymore. Because everyone was so happy with the "new" things, everyone was willing to like the "old" things again. House of Cards was literally named the best TV show of the year, and both Game of Thrones and The Force Awakens were nominated for an Oscar. That means that the Internet, which can only think about things in terms of what it's interested in, is suddenly interested in a bunch of stuff. New movies have been good too. Black Panther, Logan, Wonder Woman, and Monster's Ball all received very strong reviews. Then people saw them, and they were really good too. Before, people either loved a movie or they didn't. Some people liked it, but some people didn't. But all of a sudden people were willing to see movies that they might not have seen otherwise. The Internet doesn't just care about things that are good and new. It also cares about things that are good and old. That means that when a good movie comes out, people will just show up to see it. They won't do that for stuff they're not interested in. Just look at the Oscars if you want an example of this. The same goes for shows and video games. There are so many new shows coming out, you're not sure what

Formation of sub-surface waters in a granitic aquifer system in northern Brazil. Volumetric water content fluctuations, alkalinity, major ions concentrations, electrical conductivity (EC), and pH were measured to study the water quality of a shallow alluvial aquifer system affected by acid mine drainage (AMD) in the Alto de Santana, Minas Gerais, Brazil, over a period of 14 months. Monthly mean EC, pH and electrical conductivity range from 20 to 75 dS m<sup>-1</sup>, 6.6 to 8.7 and 1.16 to 2.31 dS m<sup>-1</sup>, respectively. The annual mean groundwater depth is below the reach of rainfall and consequently groundwater flow is predominately by pressure-driven flow. Volumetric water content fluctuations and EC suggest that a sub-surface aquifer exists at the study site. A three-phase model, consisting of an alluvial and colluvial aquifer, and an ephemeral or transient water body, adequately explains the quality of water. A Geostatistics analysis indicated that the water table is situated at a depth of 300 m below the surface. These findings are consistent with data from other studies conducted in the region.
