Saving a file When you're working on a project, you want to be able to go back and change things later. If you aren't saving a file as you work, you risk losing your work and possibly the project in the event that your computer crashes. To save a file, follow these steps: 1. Click the File menu and choose Save or Press Ctrl+S (Windows) or Command+S (Mac). The Save dialog box appears (as shown on the left in Figure 1-1). A dialog box appears for the file you select, offering you a variety of file types and settings. The file type determines whether the file is saved as a JPG, a GIF, a TIFF, or something else, as explained in Table 1-1. For the most part, you just need to select a file type and click Save. Photoshop creates and saves the file in whatever format you choose. 2. If you prefer to save only certain objects to a file, from the Select drop-down menu, choose All Layers, except: Don't save the background layer, which contains the canvas on which you draw, or the Smart Object layer. Instead, select the layer you want to save and then choose Single Selection from the Select drop-down menu. If you want to make your selection an image instead of a selection, choose Selection from the Select drop-down menu. (You can't select the background canvas or Smart Objects in a selection.) 3. From the Quality drop-down menu, choose File Quality, as shown in Figure
