While players move in a similar manner on both feet, the new game engine and controls offer new ways to exploit dynamics and feel. For example, players now have enhanced first-touch analysis, improved tackling and an improved physics engine, which means that players make their weight, body shape and size impact their on-field technique. Additionally, there are new ways to control the ball, including 'real-world dribbling' and 'real-world pressing,' along with new full-body dribbling. Players can also use their full body in the air, influencing higher-tempo goal-scoring opportunities and allowing more precise shooting with contextual support. The game features a dynamic artificial intelligence opponent, implementing new strategies for better counter-attacking plays and countering transitions from defence to attack. Every player's style of play can evolve based on in-game circumstances, making for an extremely player-driven game. FIFA 22 will also feature new modes like 'Career,' 'FIFA Ultimate Team,' 'MyClub,' 'FIFA 2K19 League,' 'FIFA 2K19 Championship,' 'FIFA 2K19 EASTPORTS,' 'FIFA 2K19 Superstar Soccer,' 'FIFA 2K19 Beach Soccer,' and 'FIFA 2K19 3v3', along with new match variants including 'Injury' and 'Copa Clásico.' New game engine innovations also allow for a smoother and more responsive gameplay experience. The development team has also worked to improve the simulation of player movement and ultimately improve the overall player experience in FIFA 22. Additional game features include: Fans will be able to play on any connected device and continue their progress in the same way across any platform. More Team of the Week content: Players now have a chance to unlock two new players to add to their Team of the Week every week. User profile pages will be overhauled and expanded to provide fans with a more robust collection of data. Social Squad Management will be improved with Fan Creations.
